Gen. Joseph C. Breckinridge has announced the engagement of his daughter,

Europe as well as in America as "the lady of the lighthouse" and whose work among the blind has been done with such marvelous success because of the sympathy and understanding with which she has entered into it, illustrated her talk yesterday with lantern slides, demonstrating more clearly than words the great work she and those associated with her have accomplished and are daily accomplishing. This work includes not only teaching many useful things to the blind which enables them to be self-supporting, but bringing them through the despondent days following their first realization of the extent of the calamity which has overtaken them, and imparting gradually the confidence and courage which enables them not only to live, but to live contentedly, often happily. Steps are being taken to give similar aid to American soldiers should the need at any time arise. Miss Holt's associates in her work in Europe include one daughter of a former President of this country, Miss Esther Cleveland, and the granddaughter of another former President, Miss Grant, to both of whom Miss Holt paid tribute yesterday for the serious and efficient work they are doing.
